PRESS RELEASE

Tour Saint-Gobain, recently completed by Generali Real Estate in La Défense, Paris, tops international sustainability certifications

Paris – Generali Real Estate and Saint-Gobain are proud to announce that the Tour Saint-Gobain hosting the new global headquarters of Saint-Gobain in La Défense, near Paris, has achieved all the four main international environmental certifications at the highest levels.

The most important development project by Generali in Paris, Tour Saint-Gobain, made sustainability its distinctive mark since the design phase. As a testimony of this environmentally-centric approach, the Tour, completed in early 2020 and to which more than 80 building material solutions provided by Saint-Gobain were used, has recently achieved all the four main international environmental certifications with the highest marks in the scale.

Tour Saint-Gobain is the first, and so far the only, High Rise Building in France having achieved:

- HQE by Certivea – Niveau “Exceptionnel” on all the four themes Environment, Comfort, Health and Energy
- High Energy Performance Label: Effinergie +
- LEED (Building Design and Construction: Core and Shell Development) by U.S. Green Building Council – Platinum certification
- BREEAM International (New Construction) - Outstanding

These achievements, certified by independent and internationally recognized institutions, are a concrete sign of the Generali commitment to actively contribute to set new sustainability benchmarks for the real estate sector and to reduce the environmental footprint of its properties portfolio across Europe, in close collaboration with like-minded, market leader tenants such as Saint-Gobain.
